Props, Costumes, Sets -- ideas

I have some pictures from the Book I have for some of the characters. You might like them for ideas, but you don't have to follow them.

Jonah dresses in a robe like bible times. (Underneath he can wear a Hawaiian shirt, swimming trunks, for second ending)

Herald: -- un crier royal -- he is a narrator or interpreter. he needs a long trumpet that he can also point with, one of those plastic trumpet they use at sports games would be great? What about a large shield? He can kind of hide behind it when he is not active in the scene. What is his affiliation? I think he is Ninevite. He will be the king's crier when the Ninevites repent.

Ninevites: Heavy eye makeup, lots of jewelry and fancy head pieces, crowns and riches, swords, armbands, a few mean soldiers, [for repentance: burlap sacks, cut open and draped] ninevites might possibly be the next to oldest class.

Sailors, ticket man, could be challenge class

Sea weed: Ali can bring us a couple trash bags from Cape Cod for Jonah to wear and the teachers to use for demonstration. It smells, and it should be fun to have.

Storm: Here are some ideas, you might have better ones:

Thunder and lightning: For thunder a large plastic garbage can, turned upside down, can be pounded with drumsticks to create the sound. Old pots and pans (you might get a few cheaply at a second hand store) can be used in the same way to add louder sounds. Don't use good pots and pans, as they may get too beat up to use for cooking. For lightning, a flash camera will create a visual effect, or large zigzag shapes cut from cardboard can be waved around the "sky" onstage to create a different kind of visual rather like a cartoon

RE being thrown off the ship: I would like the sailors to pick Jonah up all together to throw him over. We are going to have to think about how to do this without killing Jonah ☺

Waves: Do you remember the blue scarves at COPC make good waves, and we can buy another set; they are not expensive. An actor can go underneath them as if drowning.

We will have to see what Sharon thinks about parts for all the campers. I am thinking about: fish, sailors, ninevites, storm people, a class of Plants and worms? She can decide.

Plant: costume to be worn representing plant. (Could be large green cut out paper leaves which cast member will wear taped on chest and arms, over green clothing. Could also wear "crown" of green leaves)

Worm: this could be a person dressed up as a worm, or a Sock or something to represent a "worm" that will make Jonah's shade plant wither and die. This will be stretched over a cast member's hand and arm, and worm will come onstage and "bite" the plant several times so that it "dies."
